BIG GIRL

ANN knew she was a little fool! Crying wasn't going to help—or change a thing. Still the tears came, floods of them, making ragged little streaks down her cheeks as she burrowed deeper into the pillow. Her makeup would be ruined, and already her eyes were red and swollen. She looked a sight. And she didn't care! She didn't care about anything—not any more. John Riggs was marrying Sophia, that very afternoon! Ann's very own sister was marrying the man she loved, the only man she had ever loved, or ever would love.

She twisted on the bed, feeling the pillow hot and damp against her face. How could she face them downstairs? All the friends and relatives that had been invited to the wedding that afternoon. The wedding that would be starting now in half an hour.

"I can't," Ann sobbed. "I just can't go down there and watch it. And s-sing! They expect me to sing! When my heart is breaking . . ."

The door opened and Ann's sister came in. Sophia was tall with fine features and delicate bones. She was eight years older than Ann, who was nineteen.

For a moment Sophia stared, then came over to the bed and sat beside her younger sister. "Darling," she said, "what on earth?"

Ann hid her face in the pillow. No one, Sophia least of all, suspected that she loved John Riggs. How they would have laughed at her had they known! John was thirty-five and already a successful lawyer, and he thought of Ann as a child. How often in the past year had he laughed at her, ruffled her hair in a teasing fashion, and called her "Annie", a name he knew she hated. No one—least of all her sister—must know how she felt about John Riggs.

Sophia stroked Ann's hair. "You mustn't, darling. Everyone gets married at some time, or they should. And you're not losing me, you know. John and I aren't going off into the jungle or anything like that. We'll be living right here in the city, close to you. We'll see each other all the time. Why, it will be almost the same as before."

Ann sat up, staring at her sister with tear-stained eyes. So she thought that, did she? That Ann was crying because she was losing a sister. Well, it was as good a way as any to explain the tears.

Sophia was talking again. "Mother and I have a problem, baby. We've suddenly discovered that I haven't anything blue."

"B-blue?"

Sophia patted her on the head again, then stood up. "Of course. You know the old saying—a bride must wear something old and something new, something borrowed and something blue. Well, I've got all the others, but not a thing that's blue. I never wear it, you know, because it doesn't suit me, and Mother hasn't anything either. So you'll have to help us out."

Ann went to her dressing table and started repairing the ravages of the tears, while Sophia rummaged in the closet. Finally, when Ann judged that she looked almost human again—just a little swelling around the eyes—she heard Sophia sigh in disgust.

"Not a thing," Sophia said. "Not a single blessed thing that I can wear—that's blue. What am I going to do?"

Ann had an idea. "Call up some of your friends, Sophia. There's still time to catch them before they start over here. Surely, one of the girls will have something you can borrow."

Sophia stooped and kissed her on the cheek. "Guess I'll have to do that. Now you hurry, mind. We haven't much time. And I certainly don't want to start off by keeping John waiting at his own wedding."

Half an hour later Ann went downstairs. Her heart felt like a lump of lead in her chest. And the first person she saw was John. He came toward her, tall and handsome, his white teeth flashing in a smile.

"Hi, Annie," he grinned. "Come to wish the old married man good luck?"

He put a hand on her arm and Ann felt a shiver start at her toes and go right to the top of her head. Why, oh why, couldn't this be her wedding? Why couldn't this be her man, her husband?

She looked away from John, not daring to let him see her eyes. "Y-you're not married yet, John."

He laughed, the ringing, hearty laugh of a happy man. "Not yet, but soon. We're just waiting for the bride now. See—everyone is here. The band is all ready to start playing for the reception soon as the ceremony is over. You're singing, remember. Hope you've rehearsed your song, kid."

Kid! Yes—that was all she was to him. A kid. A kid sister, now, pretty soon. Ann walked away and left him looking after her, a puzzled frown on his handsome face.

She went into the large dining room, that had been cleared and made ready for the reception. The orchestra, a five piece affair, was setting up chairs and music stands in one corner. The leader smiled at Ann.

"Hello, Miss Hardy. Looks like a nice wedding. And the boys and me have been rehearsing your song. We've got it down pat. A swell number, that That's Why."

Something tinkled in Ann's brain. "No," she said. "No. I've changed my mind. I'm not going to sing That's Why."

"But, Miss Hardy! We rehearsed it. And if we change now there won't be any time. We might mess things up and . . ."

Ann leaned close to him and whispered. After a moment the man smiled. "Well, I suppose it's okay if you say so And we know that one, all right. Kind of a new idea, too."

Ann gave him her prettiest smile and went back into the living room. Last minute guests were arriving and things were in a bustle. Ann saw her mother coming down the stairs and went to meet her Mrs. Hardy looked as though she also had been crying, but now she smiled at her youngest daughter

"We found something, Ann. Something blue. But what a search we had! I finally located an old ribbon you used to wear in your hair. We made a little rosette and pinned it on Sophia's dress. It'll do the trick."

There was a little stir in the crowd. Sophia had appeared on the landing, tall and lovely in her flowing white dress. Mrs. Hardy dabbed at her eyes. "Isn't she the prettiest thing, Ann? And pretty soon now, I suppose I'll be losing you."

Sophia came down the stairs and John went to meet her. In the background the little orchestra began the soft strains of the Wedding March. A short little man came forward, a Bible clutched in his hands.

"Make me brave," Ann thought. "Don't let me cry now, not here. Let me get through this somehow. It won't be long Just a few minutes."

It didn't take long. Then everyone was crowding around, congratulating and kissing the bride. Ann gave her sister a dutiful peck, slipped away from John's embrace and ran for the dining room and the orchestra. Now, she thought! Now I'll say goodbye in my own way! I'll tell John what is in my heart in a way that only he will understand .

The orchestra leader looked at her. Ann nodded. The man tapped his foot three times and the music began to invade the room, stealing out into the corridor and inviting everyone to listen. People stopped talking and came to the door of the dining room, silent now, listening, watching the frail girl with the luminous tear-dimmed eyes.

Ann sang: "When you walk down the aisle, I may wear a smile. Yet there'll be no disguise for the tears in my eyes."

Ann was alone in the house. She closed her eyes and sang, knowing it was her heart that sang, that her lips were only doing her heart's bidding Her voice, throaty and rich, dipped and swooped and climbed Every note was pure gold. All the exquisite agony of an unrequited love rose from the depths of her being as, unashamed, she sang her love story that was ending before it ever began.

The tones died away Ann opened her eyes to applause People called out, clapped and stamped. Ann did not heed She looked into the eyes of her sister Tears still sparkled in her own eyes, but only she knew that now they were different tears.

Ann said, "There, Sophia, is your something blue. And darling, oh, Sophia, be happy!"

She left them together then, holding hands, and went out onto the porch. A westing sun was casting purple shadows and birds twittered happily in the shrubbery surrounding the house Ann smiled. She was all right now Somehow that song had taken her burden with it Already she saw things differently Life was long and she was very young. There would be another man, one day . .

"Miss Hardy, please?"

SHE turned to see the young man standing there. A good looking young man. He was smiling. "I'm Hal Marks," he said "I was invited by John. And I heard you sing You were magnificent. Will you sing with my band, Miss Hardy? With your mother's permission, of course. And I'm sorry if I seem to rush things, but we're leaving for Hollywood next week to play a picture engagement and I want to start rehearsing you "

Ann nodded. "I think Mother will say yes Mr. Marks."

They went in together and as Ann linked her arm in that of the young man, she wondered vaguely, what had happened to the little girl that had been weeping. It was funny how fast you grew up.

She Once Had HEAVY LEGS!

Now Has Slender Hips, Thighs, Knees, Calves and Ankles!

"I have been taking your course...and think it's the most wonderful thing in the line of reducing legs"

— writes Mrs. J. C. O., Lewiston, Idaho.

The most encouraging news for women with fat, flabby legs has just been revealed by Henry Milchetin, Ph.T. If your heavy legs are due to normal causes and you haven't any disease or pathological condition, you should try to attain the slender, alluring legs you've always wanted. This well-known physiotherapist, who was President of the Metropolitan School of Physiotherapy, has an enviable record of helping lovely stage and screen actresses as well as women like yourself to mold beautiful legs. Over a period of over 30 years, he has used an amazingly natural method which is unsurpassed by anything we have ever seen.

ORDINARY METHODS FOUND TO HELP LITTLE IN SLENDERIZING HEAVY LEGS

Many women engaged in improper strenuous exercises and calisthenics used up a lot of time and energy but it did next to nothing for concentrating on trimming down heavy legs.

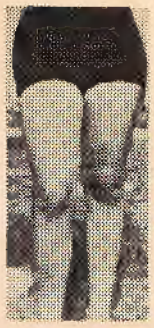
Other women actually tried reducing diets alone to slenderize heavy legs. Since a weight reducing diet cannot be made to take weight off any single part of your body, you may lose weight everywhere but in your legs. And if your legs lost a little weight, no drug or diet can normalize and firm the entire contour, which would remain flabby. This method does concentrate on slenderizing each section of your legs from the hips to the ankles.

IN MANY CASES DOCTORS ADVISE USE OF THIS TECHNIQUE

This progressive scientific method for slenderizing heavy legs is based on the knowledge and experience of the medical profession, physiotherapists and famous body contour experts throughout the world.

Your heavy flabby legs are usually caused by fatty layers and too much muscle tissue which stretch the muscles of your legs and cause them to bulge.

To help correct this condition properly, you should try this scientific system planned to concentrate on each section of your legs, help break down fatty layers and extra bulging muscle tissue and help strengthen and normalize the muscle tone which makes the contour of the legs more normal, firm, slender and attractive. When each section of the leg has its proper normal shape, the bulging hips possess streamlined, youthful lines which men admire, the flabby thighs are trimmed down into an attractive contour, ugly knees are daintily shaped without puffed-up pouches of flesh, the heavy calves take on more slenderized, alluring curves and even the heavy ankles show sleek, graceful lines.



BEFORE Mrs. J. C. O. had heavy, flabby legs, was self-conscious because her legs spoiled her entire figure.

AFTER Firmer, slender legs are acquired by following this method, you will wear all clothes and bathing suits with confidence.

"ALL AROUND GLAMOUR LEGS" HELP WOMEN IN EVERYTHING THEY DO

Most figure experts agree that heavy legs spoil an otherwise shapely figure . . . while nicely slenderized limbs add an appearance of over-all beauty to even the heavy and average figure. Because the legs are the one part of the body which always shows, glamorous legs help you look better in any clothes you wear — dresses, skirts, sports and play clothes, bathing suits, etc. They make you a more desirable dance partner and help you do the latest steps more gracefully. Well-formed, firm legs help you in all sports; then enable you to swim, skate, bowl, play tennis, etc., with more ease and better form. They help you walk and stand with ease, with the posture which always wins admiration. Removing excess flabbiness and strengthening your legs will give you more energy for work or play, help lessen fatigue, especially when your job or housework keeps you on your feet.

TESTED AND PROVEN METHOD REQUIRES ONLY 15 PLEASANT MINUTES A DAY!

This amazing method has been used by beautiful stage and screen stars, professional models and women in every walk of life. Thousands have gladly paid high fees for personal instruction here in New York City. Now this famous expert makes it possible for any women to try his method, requiring only 15 minutes a day, right in the comfort and privacy of her own home at a tiny fraction of this cost.

You get the complete, easy, step-by-step illustrated SCIENTIFIC LEG SLENDERIZING TECHNIQUE with simple instructions for fat, flabby hips, thighs, knees, calves, ankles; gaining firmer, stronger legs; improving skin tone and circulation in legs; normal causes of heavy legs; plus measurement chart for each section of leg according to height and weight; also, how leg slenderizing may improve general health.
